First thing you know, they'll be serving refreshments at a funeral.

Christmas will soon be here. Your county paper would make an ideal present for the relative who has moved away. It cost a dollar a year.

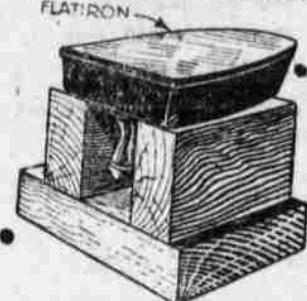

A man out West bought a gold trick. Well, that's an old trick, but there is nothing of record to dispute the saying that two suckers are born every minute.

Some of the Western States are attaching a jail sentence to the fine for speeding. That's the system, too. While the fellow is in jail there is no danger of his killing anybody. Let's try it here.

For many years the women have been clamoring for equal rights. From a legal and a political standpoint (as well as from a gun standpoint), they are now on equal footing with the men. Then let her take the same punishment for crime.

"Two Die from Poison Whiskey"; "Woman Shoots Husband"; "Girl Shoots Sweetheart." "Five Hurt in Auto Crash"; "Two Killed in a Collision"; "Five People Murdered." These are just a few daily paper headlines. What's the cause? What's the remedy?

FINE NUT CRACKER

The nutting season is here, and the accompanying picture, loaned to Monthly, shows how to fix up an old flatiron so that nuts can be cracked on it. With this foundation of wood blocks, it can also be used as an anvil.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS

(BY DR. J. W. PIERCE)

I have yet to hear a man who is sober minded, never drinks—is a total abstainer, from principle say anything to indicate any solicitude as to how public opinion is on prohibition. Those who are constantly agitating the question of amending the Volstead or any other anti-liquor act, are the original defenders of the saloon, and they care nothing about what the people think about it, so they can by some deception or other, gull the public into a sentiment in favor of nullifying the law. As a rule, when a man wants a "poll" to find out how the people stand on prohibition, is an arch deceiver, and as wet as a drowned puppy, or would be, if he could get the "licker."

The drink habit is never an evidence of genius. Some few men of genius drink, but this is merely a coincidence for it is well known that a man may be a genius in some respects and a fool in other respects; hence, the combination of genius and drunkard. A man may be distinguished and suck the jug, but this has nothing to do with his distinction. Eminence and greatness are not always one and the same, for one may be eminent and not great. The great rarely have bad habits, such as liquor drinking, for example. The truly great man, labors for the uplift of his fellow man and habits of debauchery are foreign to him.

The word temperate or temperance as applied to strong drink, is a misnomer. In view of its outward effect the use of it as a beverage is at all times intemperance or excess, hence it goes without saying that spirits cannot be used as a beverage, temperately for the user invariably imbibes for its effect which is always beyond natural, which is therefore excess. But however this may be there is one thing sure, if a man is a moderate drinker at first he never remains so. He may confine himself to a certain number of drinks a day but is sure to increase the quantity of the drinks.

The summary of the fall elections show, Wets reelected to the House, 79. Drys reelected 224. Wet new members, 54. Dry new members 72. Drys gain three votes in Senate. Ohio majority against beer 187,000. California passed bone dry law by majority of 60,000.

The Wets had boasted they would elect 200 new wet members to Congress. The result is an indisputable evidence of their total blindness as to what the people want. What fools these mortals be.

This clamor for light wine and beer is a cunning subterfuge—a hypocritical and studied deception. What these fellows really want is full strength pop skuli whiskey—their ultimate object being to make the sale of whiskey legal, and they don't care where they may have to go to secure it—whether it be a devil's hole of a saloon or a hole in the ground. Should they ever succeed in securing the desired legislation, one clause of the bill should prescribe that the liquor be tintured with plenty of Octagon soap and lime water.

TENNESSEE'S NEW CHAMPION JERSEY COW

Miss Trim, Jersey heifer owned by A. D. Jordan, Franklin, Tennessee, has become the champion junior two year old in the state. She started test at two years of age and in a year produced 9802 pounds of milk and 539.61 pounds of butter fat.

Two of the months while on test this cow produced over 50 pounds of butterfat which is rather a good achievement for a heifer on her first test. She was sired by Prince of Trine 16508 and was out of Lily's Little Pet 397698.
